EXETER HAPPENINGS.

Cooney, Star Football Player, Is Coming Back.

Important Gauge Meeting Is Coming Next Wednesday.

Budget Of Other Timely Topics From Our Special Correspondent.

(Special Correspondence.)

Exeter, Sept. 19.
There is a rumor that "Jim" Cooney, one of the best members of last year's football team at the academy, is not to return to school as he is taking examinations for Princeton. This is not so, although Princeton and about every other college would like him and many have sought for him. Cooney will return to Exeter about Oct. 1. He has been in school three years and played on both the baseball and football teams. He has been catcher and captain of the last two years' baseball teams and is captain-elect of next year's team, the honor of being captain three different years, an honor never conferred on any other man.

Prof. George A. Wentworth, Miss Ellen L. Wentworth, his daughter, and Miss Nora Hatch, who have passed the summer in Germany, sailed for home yesterday.

A large audience witnessed Daniel Sulz in The Parish Priest at the opera house last evening. The attraction tomorrow night will be Ben Hendricks in Ole Olson.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald C. Stevenson have returned from an automobile trip in the north country.

The annual meeting of the Rockingham County Republican club for the election of officers will be held here on Sept. 23.

The East Rockingham Pomona grange will hold a gala day here next Wednesday, when the tenth anniversary will be celebrated. The state officers will be present and there will be prominent speakers here from Massachusetts.

KITTERY.

Kittery, Me., Sept. 19.
Many mechanics from here employed on the navy yard have been working ten hours of late, from 6.30 to 11.30 a. m., and from 12.30 to 5.30 p. m. They were also obliged to work all day Sunday. The rush is caused by there being two ships now undergoing repairs and alterations, which the department is very anxious to have completed and ready for sea at the earliest possible moment.

Tickets for the forthcoming annual fair and entertainment of Constitution lodge, K. of P., are selling rapidly and the fair promises to be one of the best ever given and will, as usual, be one of the events of the season. The knights are wide awake and have gained an enviable reputation as hustlers. Some day the people of this town will be proud of this secret organization, for the plans they have in view, if carried out, will give the old town something she has long needed. This lodge numbers among its members the best men of our town and is growing in membership every year.

The lecture on India given in the Second Christian church on Thursday evening by Rev. Dr. Jones attracted a large number of people, who listened to the speaker with great interest. A number of articles which Mr. Jones secured during his long residence in India were exhibited.

The Second Christian church Sunday school secured a considerable sum of money from the two entertainments of last week, and the presentation of the Old Maids' Convention at York on Wednesday evening was also a success financially.

Nearly every dwelling in town is occupied at the present time, and the demand for rents is unprecedented.

The early autumn travel on the P. & Y. street railway is of unusual proportions.

KITTERY POINT.

Kittery Point, Me., Sept. 19.
One of the Boston newspapers recently imparted the information that William Dean Howells was passing the summer at York. As a matter of fact Mr. Howells with his family came early to Kittery Point, is still here, will remain well into the fall and will no doubt return here next year. He is a charming man, and to know him is to love and admire him. He is very studious and has put in a very busy summer. He is regular in his habits and always rises early and writes or studies until the dinner hour. The afternoon and evening he passes as best suits him. He is very fond of our door life and a great lover of nature. His son has passed a part of the summer here with his parents.

A large delegation of Sunday school workers went to South Eliot on Wednesday to attend the session of the Eliot, Kittery and York Sunday School association, when a most interesting program was presented. Our

TO TOUR THE WEST.

THE PRESIDENT LEAVING THE "SYMPH"
President Roosevelt plans to follow up his New England and Southwestern trips by a tour of the West. The above snapshot was taken at the close of his southwestern tour. It conveys a graphic idea of the unpretentious appearance of the chief executive of the United States.

Two local pastors both took part in the forenoon session, each reading a paper upon the following question: "In What Way Can the Greatest Interest be Contributed to the Sunday School?" Rev. J. W. Card of the Christian church read a paper setting forth the duties and responsibilities of the superintendent and Rev. G. H. Woodhull read one setting forth those of the teacher. The new electric railway to Eliot makes it very easy to get to this formerly isolated spot, and the convention was a most successful one from start to finish.

A number of Kittery young people are attending the High school at Portsmouth.

Mrs. Hattie W. Ferguson and Mrs. John Ricker of Kennebunk are visiting Mrs. Ferguson's daughter, Mrs. Granville O. Berry.

Rev. J. P. Jones, D. D., who has been passing the summer here, will go to Andover, Mass., on Monday, to begin the Hyde lectures on foreign missions. Mr. Jones will speak of missionary work in India. He delivered a lecture on Indian customs at Kittery on Thursday evening, and will give another at the North church, Portsmouth, Sunday night.

METHODIST CHURCH.

At the 10:30 o'clock service on Sunday morning, Mr. Ralph Wells will give an address on Sunday School work. Mr. Wells is a resident of New York, but spends his summers at York Harbor. He was formerly the greatest and most successful Sunday school worker in this country and is a very enthusiastic and forceful speaker. All should make a special effort to hear him, especially all the members of the Sunday school. His address will contribute greatly to the success of the Sunday school rally, which will be held a week from Sunday, during the time of the morning service as well as during the Sunday school hour.

THE FRINGED GENTIAN.

The fringed gentian is now in blossom and considerable quantities of it are being brought into the city. It is very justly considered one of the most attractive of our wild flowers, particularly as it comes late in the season. Its exquisite blue is in strong contrast with the more glaring tints of the common autumn wild flowers and it is rare enough so that one always takes keen pleasure in finding it. The

A SERIOUS QUESTION.

"What Are We Going to Do About Fuel?"

As the autumn air grows a bit eager—and nipping in the early morning and after sundown, a gentle reminder of the rapidly approaching winter, the lack of coal for heating purposes is transformed from a subject for discussion into a problem to be solved. September is two-thirds passed and there is no definite information concerning an end to the strike in the anthracite regions of Pennsylvania.

Not one family in a dozen hereabouts has enough fuel from the mines in the cellar to fill a hod, and those who possess a left-over ton or two are the envy of all their neighbors. Yet wives and children must be kept warm when the weather gets cold and food must be prepared for meals.

Already children of the poor are gathering kindlings and picking over clinders at the dumps in vacant lots, and their parents expect that the youngsters will be compelled to continue the work.

Cooking will be done in certain instances with coke, although its cost is rising and persons unaccustomed to its use complain that it destroys grates and stove linings.

Several householders declare that they intend to heat their residences with oil stoves.

Gas and wood will both be consumed to a large extent for fuel.

Families are found that are scheming to close all rooms possible during the winter and burn logs in open fireplaces in the actual living apartments.

Peat is being bought, if it can be purchased at a fair price.

Many promise, if worst comes to worst, to shut up their houses and go to boarding. Many more are of the opinion that the best thing they can do when the snow falls and the chilly winds blow, is to go back to the old folk in the country, close to the forest primeval.

"I don't know what I'll do," is a very common reply to the query of the reporter.

Scarcity is the Only Objection to Their Use

Appropos of the numerous substitutes for coal, dried peach stones have been utilized in Baltimore as fuel, and have given satisfaction. The only objection to their use is their scarcity. Frank Hall said that his family had used peach stones as a fuel for years until about three or four years ago, since which time the supply has appeared to have decreased. "We used to get the dried peach stones from a Mr. Noel, who got them from the different packing houses and dried them on his place," said Mr. Hall. "I think we paid $2.50 a load for them, the load containing about forty-five bushels. The fuel was used in the kitchen and gave good results. The stones will make a quick, hot fire and one that will last. One and a half or two buckets of the peach stones will last as long as a bucket of coal. One has to be careful not to fill the stove too full or there will likely be an explosion. The proper way to keep the fire going is to put in a shovelful at a time. Peach stones thrown into a damp cellar," said Hall, "are said to have a peculiar effect on a person. After the stones are in a cellar for a time gases arise and the fumes will go to one's head and give the same effect as if the distilled product of the peach had been imbibed."—Baltimore Sun.

SESSIONS ENDED.

Close of Anniversary Meeting of Baptist Association.

The seventy-fourth anniversary meeting of the Portsmouth association of Baptist churches closed Thursday afternoon at the Central avenue Baptist church in Dover, after a two days' session.

There was a large attendance of delegates and Rev. Frank Parker of Plaistow was chosen moderator.

The annual sermon was delivered by Rev. Dr. George W. Gile of this city. A paper on "Christian Endeavor Pilgrims" was read Thursday afternoon by Miss Anna McNeil of Exeter. The Baptist Young People's union held a short session, presided over by Rev. Dr. Merritt.

The Portsmouth association elected these officers: Rev. J. W. Chesbro of Chester, president; Miss Watson of Somersworth, vice president; Roscoe Swain of Exeter, secretary and treasurer. Rev. Edwin P. Churchill of Dover was appointed preacher at the next annual session.

FREE TO MILLIONS.

A Valuable Little Book Sent Free For the Asking.

Medical books are not always interesting reading, especially to people enjoying good health, but as a matter of fact one person in ten is perfectly healthy, and even with such, sooner or later sickness must come.

It is also a well established truth that nine-tenths of all diseases originate with a breaking down of the digestion, a weak stomach weakens and impoverishes the system, making it easy for disease to gain a foothold.

Nobody need fear consumption, kidney disease, liver trouble or a weak heart and nervous system as long as the digestion is good and the stomach able to assimilate plenty of wholesome food.

Stomach weakness shows itself in a score of ways and this little book describes the symptoms and causes and points the way to a cure so simple that anyone can understand and apply.

Thousands have some form of stomach trouble and do not know it. They ascribe the headaches, the languor, nervousness, insomnia, palpitation, constipation and similar symptoms to some other cause than the true one. Get your digestion on the right track and the heart trouble, lung trouble, liver disease or nervous debility will rapidly disappear.

This little book treats entirely on the cause and removal of indigestion and its accompanying annoyances. It describes the symptoms of Acid Dyspepsia, Nervous Dyspepsia, Slow Dyspepsia, Amylaceous Dyspepsia, Catarrh of the stomach and all affections of the digestive organs in plain language easily understood and the cause removed.

It gives valuable suggestions as to diet, and contains a table giving length of time required to digest various articles of food, something every person with weak digestion should know.

No price is asked, but simply send your name and address plainly written on postal card to the P. A. Stuart Co., Marshall, Mich., requesting a little book on Stomach Diseases, and it will be set promptly by return mail.

Accounts filed—In estate of Joseph Avery, Danville.

Receipts filed—In estates of Joseph C. Armstrong, Windham; George E. Gile, Northwood; Mary S. Brown, Hampton; John T. Perry, Exeter.

Agent appointed—John H. Fogg, in estate of Abby D. Smith of Hampton.

New bond filed—In estate of Henry C. Mose, Exeter.

A COMING EDITORIAL MARRIAGE.

"There is but one more week of single blessedness for the editor of this paper," says the editor of the Highland Vidette in a quaint announcement of his own marriage. "A young woman has consented to take our name and share with us the burdens and joys of life. She is Miss Elsie Kitzmiller, youngest daughter of Mrs. Lavinia Kitzmiller. Her father was Frank Kitzmiller, a veteran of the Civil war, who died one year ago. The time set for the ceremony is next Wednesday at two o'clock in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Kitzmiller. A number of friends have been invited—but not nearly all. The house would not hold one-third of all those 'we' should have been pleased to see present. (This is not the editor's 'we') having assumed a new significance. But there will be enough, we hope, to fill the house and see that the job is well done. There will be no attendants. 'We' will be the whole show. There will be no tears—every one will be glad to see us (editorial us) finally married. There will be a happy, handsome couple, the handsomeness being contributed by the other half. No one's life is complete who lives alone. No, of course not. To develop into a surly, crabbed, soul-shriveling old bachelor, or dwindle away into an old maid full of vinegar and fool notions—what unhappier fate! To form a complete and useful life, marriage is a necessity as well as a luxury. Yet these considerations are mere side issues. The first consideration is to find some one you can love, respect and admire. Love is apart from logic. It is capricious. It frowns upon wealth, tramples over differences of age, breaks down any established rules of precedence, and surrounds the coolly systematic. We are it. Time passes slowly."—Kansas City Journal.

SHAW ON THE TARIFF

HIS VOICE RAISED AGAINST PRE-MATURE AGITATION.

The Secretary of the Treasury Declares Tariff Making as of No Value as a Trust Antidote-Injury to All Lines of Business.

At Morrisville, Vt., recently 2,000 persons listened with great interest to Leslie M. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, who was the principal speaker at a Republican rally. Secretary Shaw spoke in part as follows:

I have been quoted as opposed to a revision of the tariff. I have never opposed readjustment of the tariff. Whenever congress reaches the conclusion that the friends of protection are strong enough to modify conservatively certain schedules so as to meet changed conditions and at the same time successfully resist the efforts of the opposition to revise the entire tariff laws, thus paralyzing business for a season, I am in favor of it. I have expressed some doubt, however, about the wisdom of instructing by resolution or exacting pledges from candidates for congress when the effect is to precipitate a protracted debate with very uncertain results. There ought to be some more tangible reason for such a dangerous expedient than the existence of a sentiment in certain localities, now as always, that demands a reduction of the tariff on articles there consumed and not produced, while it stands ready to fight to a finish any reduction on the things there produced. I for one must have a very bitter and relentless enemy before I will consent to carry yellow fever germs into my home town. Don't misunderstand me. I am not comparing the readjustment of a schedule here and there to an epidemic. But I do declare there has never been a revision of the tariff in the interests of free trade or for revenue only that has not proved as fatal to business as the plagues of Egypt.

I have never seen the time, since I have given public questions consideration, that I would not reduce the rate on quite a large number of items, nor when I would not increase the rate on other items. It is not likely that any member of either house of congress ever voted for a tariff bill entirely to his liking, nor is it probable that any president ever signed a bill that he would not have changed in some particular had it been in his power. I am willing to concede that conditions change, and that the old Morrill bill of the sixties, for instance, when the country was involved in war, would not be appropriate for us now, but I will not admit that the tariff is the mother of trusts, nor will I concede that a tariff for revenue only will destroy trusts on any other theory than that a fire in a wheatfield will destroy Canada thistles.

Business depression dissipates both organized and unorganized capital.
Enforced idleness means financial ruin to individuals, to business firms and to corporations, both great and small.
On the contrary, business prosperity inspires hopefulness. It encourages the individual to reach out, to expand, to buy more land, more houses, more cattle, to erect more stores, build more shops and to embark in new enterprises. It leads to the organization of corporations. It inspires both dreams of great things and the consummation of gigantic enterprises. It leads to the combination of capital and the organization of labor. Does any one suppose that the anthracite coal miners could be kept together if there were a million men out of employment and their families begging bread? Will any one claim that they could be sustained without a great army of bituminous coal miners who are receiving such compensation as enables them to contribute a dollar a week for the maintenance of their brethren? The protection tariff is not the mother of trusts, though it is the parent of conditions that make it profitable for capital to combine and congenial for labor to organize.

The Republican party in my state recently reaffirmed the tariff platform of 1901. This has caused considerable comment. It has been misinterpreted, not quite as persistently but in the same way that the memorable speech of President McKinley at Buffalo has been misinterpreted, misquoted, misconstrued and misunderstood. This platform was unanimously adopted both years. Its statements are academically correct. Every man in the United States, Republican and Democrat, believes in the truth of its utterances. It declares "in favor of such changes in the tariff from time to time as become desirable through the progress of our industries and their changing relations to the commerce of the world." Is there any one who is not in favor of such changes in the tariff from time to time as are advisable? I am willing the jury shall be polled on that proposition. So say we all. It also declares "in favor of any modification of tariff schedules that may be required to prevent their affording shelter to monopoly." And, again, we all say "Aye, aye," to the proposition. There may be quite a radical difference of opinion as to the truth of the implied admission that the protective tariff does afford shelter to monopoly, but there would be no difference of opinion about removing it if it did afford such shelter.

A few days ago the butchers in convention assembled declared in favor of abolishing the tariff on cattle and meat.
To the end that this supposed shelter for the alleged meat trust might be removed, but I am disposed to think the good farmers of my state would vote quite unanimously against such an experiment. By the trend of the speeches made at the butchers' convention I discover a sentiment well known universally expressed there that meat is being monopolized by the great packers, but I happen to have a tenant out in Iowa who has a fine bunch of cattle on which no packer holds a lien of any kind, and he writes me that he is willing to sell them to butchers if they will pay as much as the packers offer. I am quite sure the people would as soon buy this meat of the butchers as of the packers. Thus there is afforded a splendid opportunity for any one to make all kinds of money if he will but give the farmer as much money for his beef and mutton as the people are willing to pay for their money. Suppose we take the tariff off beef and then suppose the hordes of cattle from Mexico and South America are brought in by the hundreds of thousands. They will find their way to the stockyards, and the butchers will be compelled to bid against the packers then, as now. No. The removal of the tariff on live stock and meat would not restore the butchers to business. It might ruin the farmers, but the packers could stand it, for nothing less than organized capital could enter the import meat business with packing houses in foreign countries, refrigerating ships and other expensive equipment. I happen to know that at least one and, I understand, two of the big packing houses have had men looking into the South American field for more than two years. The farmer as it is has ample reason to be apprehensive.

Let no one understand this to be a defense of the packers or an extenuation of their offenses. A suit is now pending against them, and if the allegations of the petition are sustained (and that seems probable) they are going to have trouble, and it will take a very much more acute form than it would to say to the farmers of the United States that their industry shall be opened to competition from the unlimited ranges of South America.

The senior Phil Armour told me that he got rich while a young man by watching the iron and coal miners. He said: "Whenever these men were at work, I used to pack every ham I could get my hands on, and my old partner would say, 'Phil, you will break us up.' I would answer: 'No.
Those fellows are working.' But when the coal and iron workers were idle I used to sell everything I could dispose of."

THE SECRET OF AMERICAN PROSPERITY, gentlemen, can be conched in three words. "They are working." And "they" means everybody—farmer and artisan, mechanic and merchant, the man at the forge and the man in the field—and they are all interdependent.

Away back in 1846 Daniel Webster, in the course of a three days' speech against that most unfortunate tariff which repealed the protective tariff act which bore the signature of old "Tippecanoe," uttered this maxim: "When there is work for the hands, there will be bread for the teeth." So I appeal to you, gentlemen, to see to it that the next congress is Republican by a large majority, so large that there shall be ample courage to do that which is deemed wisest and best.

SAME STORY, SAME SONG.
Some Republicans Who Seem Disposed to Repeat the Folly of 1902.

Is not the same story being told and the same song sung as in 1890-92, when a large number of people accustomed to net with the Republican party found themselves in a state of nervous unrest because of the McKinley tariff?
Let the truth be told and the devil be shamed. It is a fact that the country is full of Republicans—not Free Traders, not Democrats, not even mug-wumps, at least not consciously mug-wumps—who are in a similar state of nervous unrest because of the tremendous prosperity that has followed the enactment of the Dingley tariff of 1897. It is a fact that Republicans are the ones who are doing the most mischief just now. Of course we expect it of Democrats and Free Traders, whose chief object in life is to get hold of the government and run it on an anti-Republican plan. We expect it, we are prepared for it, and know what to do about it. But it is different when Republicans lose their wits and begin to yell for cork jackets to save them from the tidal wave of too much prosperity. Yet that is precisely the situation at the present time. Of course these timid, nerve shattered souls are going to recover their equilibrium and regain their presence of mind and vote the Republican ticket as usual, but in the meantime they are making awful fools of themselves by joining in the hue and cry raised by free traders, tariff reformers and mug-wumps. That is the exasperating part of it. They have always been Republicans, they are Republicans and they expect to remain Republicans, and yet through their hesitated alarms about conditions that are the inevitable accompaniments of phenomenal prosperity they are making a lot of needless trouble and founding an agitation that is calculated to disturb confidence and unsettle business. If these folks would only think back to 1892, they would remember that it was precisely the same sort of prosperity fight that gave us Grover Cleveland, a Democratic congress and all that that implied and involved. We don't imagine for a moment that any Republican could want 1892 over again in 1901, but there is no denying that there are a lot of them who don't seem to know enough to abstain from taking liberties with propriety. They ought to leave all that sort of thing to the Democrats.

When Wages Are Good.
The most absurd statement is that "high tariff taxes have nothing to do with wages except to lower them." Under the administration of Cleveland and before the Wilson and Garfield protection and free trade had extending to do with wages. In that free trade period it was not a question as to the amount of wages, but whether they could get an opportunity to earn any wages, that troubled the American workman.

THE ANGORA.

An Oregon Breeder Who Declares That This Goat Has Come to Stay.

The Angora goat industry is creating a marked interest in the western section of our land, and I thought I would add a few words relative to the merits of one of the most beautiful animals of our domestic herds, writes Samuel Lawrence of Oregon to Wool Markets and Sheep. The Angora goat's food consists chiefly of leaves, buds and the bark of forest trees. The Angora does not care for grass as long as there are green shrubs near by. It is indeed hard to estimate the value of the Angora for the purpose of clearing the land.
If kept on one piece of land three years, there will not be a green shrub left alive.

The mountain districts of Oregon, Washington and California are receiving the attention of goat breeders. The vast amount of waste land in these mountains is only fit for goat pasture.
It's their delight to climb some steep rocky cliff and to pick the leaves off a bush where they can look down into the valleys hundreds of feet below. I do not know of any kind of shrub that they will not eat. They should be protected from cold rains or snowstorms by means of a shed. They are as regular as a clock in coming to their yard when salt is provided for them. The disposition of pure bloods is kind, and with proper treatment they will follow wherever you lead them. They are great pets. Their mohair is used in making plushes for palace cars and costly trimmings for capes and many other purposes. The factories would use more if it were possible to obtain it, but the supply is limited.

The Angora goat has come to stay.
His fame and usefulness will increase as soon as the American people realize the value of the little animal, and its velvet flavored meat will be one of the savory dishes of our land.

Learning to Feed.
In no other branch of the live stock industry does weight for age cut such a figure as in the hog business. A pig that is not a good grower and gainer is no good. His breeding on paper may be fine, but if he is not grower he is not satisfying the customer who is looking for a hog that will breed better and grower stock. All breeders of pure bred hogs therefore should be good feeders, and no one who is not a good feeder should attempt to break into the business. It is well to learn to feed hogs before spending much money for fancy breeding stock. Many who have failed with pure bred stock have simply been ignorant of the science of feeding. It cannot be bought or learned except by experience and practice. The man who doesn't know how would better get his experience on grade hogs.
It will cost him less.

It is evident from reports we quite often receive that our veterinarians and men of science are more liable to become baffled by what may be called the spontaneous breaking out of disease among sheep than those attending any other of our domestic animals. says Wool Markets and Sheep. At present Oregon flocks are suffering from a disease the symptoms of which are an inflammation of the skin, mouth, lips and nose, which causes the animal considerable difficulty in taking food.
In Utah a similar but more violent species of the trouble seems to attack the flock in certain seasons of the year.
The attacked one at first shows symptoms that are very pronounced. They raise their heads high and turn and twist from one side to another as if in horrible distress and after standing in this attitude for a considerable time will commence to leap in a zigzag way and manner and then making for brush stand, as if having found relief.
Their heads swell to an alarming size, and in some cases their eyes have been known to burst and in many cases to leave the sockets and remain suspended by the ligament of the eye on the animal's cheek. A large percentage usually succumb to the malady. Those that survive the trouble linger along for some considerable time, when a scale forms on the affected parts and, after drying, ultimately falls off. It is generally the fattest ones that fall a victim to the trouble. It seems to us that a thorough investigation by those qualified to investigate should clear up this mysterious matter. The question is, is it a contagious disease or is it one which is brought about by local conditions, such as poisoning from particular of a poisonous weed, etc.? There is a reason for it, and our men of science are the ones upon whom we naturally depend for the solution of the problem.

Sheep on Wheat Stubble.
This year thousands of sheep will be put on the wheatfields of the northwest as soon after harvest as these are available. The waste of wheat each season is considerable, and no attempt has been made to utilize the grain left on the field. The farmers will get 5 cents per acre for allowing the sheep to be grazed. This is the smallest part of the remuneration, as the fertilizer added by the sheep is considered quite valuable. Besides, weeds will be kept down and prevented from seeding.
This plan has been experimented with and found very satisfactory.

Record Price For Lambs.
The extreme record price paid for Colorado fed lambs in the Chicago market is $7.00, paid in June for a band of 710 head that averaged seventy-eight pounds each. The Klunk Packing company, Denver, has the honor of marketing this great consignment. The price is 5 cents higher than ever before paid in Chicago.

Who Executed Charles I?
In the burial register of Whitechapel entry:
"June 21st. Richard Brandon, a man out of Rosemary lane. This Brandon is held to be the man who beheaded Charles the First."
A less distinguished candidate for the infamy was one William Howlett, actually condemned to death after the restoration for a part he never played and only saved from the gallows by the urgent efforts of a few citizens who swore that Brandon did the deed.
Brandon was not available for restitution. He had died in his bed six months after Charles was beheaded and had been hurried ignominiously into his grave in Whitechapel churchyard. As public executioner of London he could hardly escape his destiny, but it is said that remorse and horror shortened his days. In his supposed "Confession," a tract widely circulated at the time, he claims that he was "ferreted out of bed by a troop of horse" and carried against his will to the scaffold; also that he was paid £30, all in half crowns, for the work and had "an orange stuck full of cloves and a handkerchief out of the king's pocket." The orange he sold for 10 shillings in Rosemary lane.—Harper's Magazine.

Washington's Birthday.
Washington's birthday was made a legal holiday by vote of the Massachusetts legislature April 15, 1855; therefore Feb. 22, 1857, was first a legal holiday. For many years previous Mrs. Harrison Gray Otis held a reception at her home on Feb. 22, to which all the people of the city of Boston were invited. Her house was open to the public on that day, and before and after the day became a legal holiday all the military companies of Boston would parade past her house on the 22d. Probably the first occasion of Washington's birthday being recognized was Feb. 12, 1781. That was by the French troops at Newport, R. I. As the 11th fell on Sunday, the celebration was held on the 12th. This was according to the old style of reckoning.

Checking a Hemorrhage.
Even a very slight hemorrhage is always startling, but it does not necessarily mean anything dangerous. It may be caused by a slight disarrange-ment of the stomach as well as by a disease of the lungs or heart. No one but an experienced physician should decide this question, however. Let the patient lie quietly and give him cold drinks until a physician comes. A little salted water is a simple, familiar household remedy for such cases.
Quiet and rest are positively essential if the cause is a serious one.

Turkish Cemeteries.
Upon the graves of the dead in the Turkish cemeteries little vessels of water are placed for the benefit of the birds, and some of the marble tombs have basins chiseled out for the same purpose, the superstition being that birds carry messages about the living to the dead and, like everybody else in Turkey, are suspected of being spiteful unless something is done to curry their favor.

Period of Deepest Sleep.
The period of deepest sleep varies from 3 o'clock to 5. An hour or two after going to bed you sleep very soundly; then your slumber grows gradually lighter, and it is easy enough to waken you at 1 or 2 o'clock, but when 4 o'clock comes you are in such a state of somnolence that it would take a great deal to waken you.

Truth.
Truth is always consistent with itself and needs nothing to help it out.
It is always near at hand, sits upon our lips and is ready to drop out before we are aware. A lie is troublesome and sets a man's invention upon the rack, and one trick needs a great many more to make it good.

A Stay at Home Traveler.
Stranger—What wonderful tales old Uncle related! He must have been a great traveler in his day.
Nattie—He was never outside the county in his life; but, you see, his mind has wandered for years. Ex-

One of Her Brothers.
"Don't you know me? I'm your long lost brother."
"How do you suppose I can remember all the men I've promised to be a sister to?"—New York Herald.

Solving the Problem.
"What can I do for my little boy," asked mamma, "so that he won't want to eat between meals?"
"Have the meals closer together," replied the young hopeful.

The Elder Sothorn's Tact.
It was in the year 1803 or 1804. During the summer months Sothorn, with John T. Haymond and several other well known actors, occupied the local theater of a seaside summer resort, to which he and his company drew a houseful of people several nights in the week to hear and see them act.
He really was in preparation for their next winter's New York season—the most important of Shakespeare's plays.
The little building had of course a gallery, and in the gallery the "gods" became so obstreperous on occasions that it was with great difficulty the play could be proceeded with. The troupe leader, a well known rough of the town, was a man named Bill Hanrahan.
One night a happy inspiration struck Sothorn. Having learned the name of this prominent member of the rowdy element, he addressed him in the midst of the most unruly noises as follows: "Mr. Hanrahan, will you be good enough to take charge of the gallery and keep order for me, and I shall feel very grateful." The result was magical. Bill became at once an official of the theater and as such cracked the heads of a few of his erstwhile fellow rioters with such good effect that it was only a little time before the best of order prevailed.—Century.

Every Convenience.
There is a dock laborer in Glasgow who is possessed of a great sense of humor. Perhaps it's because he's an Irishman. Pat had been disturbed several times in his single apartment by a well meaning lady missionary. Seeing Pat was rather an exemplary sort of a husband, she suggested that he might be able to afford a room and kitchen soon.
"An' phwat was Ol want lavin' such a comfortable house as this for?" asked Pat.
"Well," she replied, "you would have more room—more conveniences."
"Conveniences is it?" said Pat, with a smile. "Sure, an' at present if Ol want to go to the drawin' room or the dinin' room or the conservatory, begorra, Ol've just got to sit still.
Phwat could be handier?" The lady couldn't say.—London Answers.

Not an Occasion For Haste.
During the Sikh war the late Field Marshal Sir Neville Chamberlain, who then held the rank of colonel, called for volunteers to assist him in blowing up a bastion. Three or four responded, and the colonel led the little party close up to the point where the mine was to be fired. As soon as the explosives were in place and the fuse lighted the volunteers started to run in order to get out of the way of the explosion no less than to effect, as speedily as possible to retreat to the safety of the British lines. They had not gone a dozen yards before Chamberlain shouted: "Come back! There's to be no indecent haste, young men.
We'll wait." And walk they did, while the fuse slowly sputtered down to the waiting powder.

A Minor Consideration.
The ambitious young woman was attracted by an advertisement, one line of which read, "How to Become an Author." The advertiser claimed that by his method failure was impossible.
So the ambitious young woman sent on the necessary trifling sum of money, and by return mail she received a slip on which was printed this bit of advice, "Write something."

"But," she protested by letter, "I already have done that, and it hasn't been printed."
"We congratulate you," was the reply. "If you have written something, you already are an author. Publication is a minor consideration, with which we have nothing to do."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Managing the Baby.
Young Matron (with theories on the care of children, to nurse)—Jane.
Nurse—Yessum.
Young Matron—When the baby has finished his bottle, lay him in the cradle on his right side. After eating a child should always lie on the right side. That relieves the pressure on the heart. Still (reflectively) the liver is on the right side. Perhaps, after all, you had better lay him on the left side. No, I am sure the treatise on "Infant Digestion" said right side. On the whole, Jane, you may lay the baby on his back until I have looked up the matter more thoroughly.

An Earnest Salutation.
"Ah," said Riggs as a prosperous looking man who had cordially saluted Diggs passed on, "that's the way I like to hear a man speak. He seemed sincerely glad to find you alive and well."
"Yes," replied Diggs. "He probably was. He's the president of the company my life's insured in."—Brooklyn Life.

Expressive.
It was Tommy's first glass of soda water that he had been teasing for so long.
"Well, Tommy, how does it taste?" asked his father.
"Why," replied Tommy, with a puzzled face, "it tastes like your foot's asleep."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Natural Question.
Little Walter was eating lunch, when he gave his arm a sudden shove, and splashed down went his glass of milk.
"I knew you were going to spill that!" said mamma angrily.
"Well, if you knew," queried Walter,
"why didn't you tell me?"

Solving the Problem.
plied the young hopeful.

Marriages Without Money.
The peer and divine, John Donne, who became dean of St. Paul's in 1621, married a daughter of Sir George Moore without the consent of her parents. He was told by his father-in-law that he was not to expect any money from him. The bridegroom went home and wrote this witty note, "John Donne, Anne Donne, undone," which he sent to the angry father, and this had the effect of restoring them to favor. They were very poor at first, but things soon got brighter, and they lived most happily together.
Sir Joshua Reynolds after Flaxman had married told him that this would ruin him as an artist. When the husband related this to his wife, she resolved that marriage should make and not mar her husband and to this end further resolved that he should study at Rome and do everything that he might have done without marriageal responsibilities. "But how?" asked Flaxman. "Work and economize," rejoined the brave woman. So well did they do this that he found that "wedlock is for an artist's good, rather than his harm," and they both discovered that they were made for each other.

Fortune Telling

does not take into consideration the essential to woman's happiness—womanly health. There is many a woman whose future seems absolutely unclouded who is marked by her own condition for future disappointment and distress.

The woman who neglects her health is neglecting the very foundation of all good fortune. For without health love loses its lustre and gold is but dross.
Womanly health may be retained or regained by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It establishes regularity, dries the drains which weaken women, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong, sick women well.

Sick women are invited to consult Dr.
Pierce by letter free. All correspondence held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.
"I have taken six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription," writes Miss M. E. Fyfe, of Orilla, Seneca Co., Ontario, "and two bottles of Dr.
Pierce's Pellets as you advised for congestion of uterus, ovaries, and weakness, and can safely say that your medicine has been the means of restoring me to good health again, which I had not had for over three years, until taking your medicine. I thank you very much for your kind and prompt attention to my letter asking advice."
"Favorite Prescription" has the testimony of thousands of women to its complete cure of womanly diseases. Do not accept an unknown and unproved substitute in its place.

ALL WRONG.
The Mistake Is Made By Many Ports-

Don't mistake the cause of back-

To be cured you must know the

It is wrong to imagine relief is Backache is kidney ache.

You must cure the kidneys.
A Portsmouth resident tells you how this can be done.
Mr. Thomas Eatwistle, city marshal, says: "I was never troubled very much with my kidneys, but I had a very sharp attack of lameness in the back and pains across the loins. At the time I got Doan's Kidney Pills I was suffering much distress. It hurt me to make any sudden movement and sharp twinges seized me in the small of the back when rising from a found they were helping me, and before I had finished the whole box I was quite free from pain. I have had no trouble since."

HON. NAHUM J. BACHELDER.
Republican Candidate's Steady Rise to Position of Honor and Trust.

Hon. Nahum J. Bachelder of Andover, republican candidate for governor of New Hampshire, is in the eighth generation of the descendants of the Rev. Stephen Bachelder, who settled at Hampton 1632.

He was born at Andover September 3, 1854, upon the farm where he now resides and which was cleared by his great-grandfather in 1782. He is the eldest child of William A. and Hannah P. (Shaw) Bachelder. His boyhood was spent upon the farm and he attended the district schools, supplemented by terms at the Franklin academy and the New Hampton institute.

After a brief experience in teaching, he resolved to devote his attention to practical agriculture, and was for some time largely and successfully engaged in market gardening. Subsequently dairying claimed his attention, and he gained a wide reputation for high grade butter, supplying some of the best hotels in the state with his product.

In 1877 he became a member of the Highland grange at East Andover, of which he was later chosen master, and in 1883 he was chosen secretary of the State grange, holding the office for eight years, he was promoted to the master's chair, which he has since filled with remarkable success. He is a charter member of Merrimack County Poona grange and was its first lecturer.

His interest in agricultural matters led him to take a prominent part in organizing the Grange State fair at Tilton and he served as secretary of that organization for ten years, during which time it enjoyed its highest prosperity. He was also instrumental in starting the Concord State fair, of which he has been secretary since its organization.

Early in 1887, upon the death of James O. Adams, who had been secretary of the State Board of Agriculture from its organization, Mr. Bachelder was chosen secretary of the board, his selection having been due quite largely to the recognized ability of his services as secretary of the State grange, and the manifest propriety of establishing relations of cordial co-operation between the grange and the board of agriculture. This position he has held to the present time, a period of fifteen years, and it suffices to say, as more than fulfilled, in the character of his service, the most sanguine expectations of those who were actively instrumental in securing his election.

During the administration of Governor Goodell the legislature established the office of commissioner of immigration, its purpose being to secure, as far as possible, the re-occupation of the abandoned farms of the state, and to check the tendency to depopulation in the country districts. To this office, Mr. Bachelder was appointed, and has also held the same to the present time, its duties having been subsequently merged by the legislature with those of the secretary of the board of agriculture. During his administration of this office he has done much to carry out the purpose for which it was established, issuing numerous attractive publications calling the attention of people outside the state to the eligibility of New Hampshire farms for summer homes and permanent dwelling places, and by constant effort, through correspondence, likewise, developing wide interest therein, and effecting eminently satisfactory results, so that the number of abandoned farms in the state has been vastly reduced.

As a member of the State Cattle Commission since its organization, in the double capacity of secretary of the board of agriculture and master of the State grange (the board consisting under the law of these officials and secretary of the State Board of Health) he has been active, vigilant, and efficient, making conservative use of the powers conferred by the law, but moving with such promptitude and judgment that contagious disease among the live stock of the state has gained no strong hold in any quarter, and public confidence in the work of the commission has increased from year to year.

As secretary of the New Hampshire Old Home week association, which was organized during the administration of Governor Frank W. Rollins, through the initiative of the latter, he has performed, in large measure, the executive work of the association, and it is to his interest, zeal and energy that the idea upon which the association is based has taken such a strong hold upon the public mind in different sections of the state.

As a member of the National grange, by virtue of his position as master of the New Hampshire State grange, he has held a leading position from the start, and no man wields a stronger influence in the councils of that body. He served for two terms as a member of the executive committee, is serving his second two years' term as lecturer, and is now, and has been for several years, a member of the legislative committee, whose duty it is to furnish such congressional legislation as may be deemed desirable for the interests of American agriculture and to oppose such as may be detrimental to the same. In this capacity he has repeatedly appeared, with his associates, before congressional committees of either house in advocacy of or opposition to pending measures, some of his most efficient work in this direction having been done in behalf of measures extending the scope of the rural free mail delivery service, which service, by the way, owns its establishment and extension almost wholly to the efforts of the grange.

As a speaker, Mr. Bachelder is both pleasing and logical, possessing the happy faculty of combining wit and wisdom, anecdote and argument. He has, undoubtedly, been heard of more and by more people, in the last fifteen years than any other man in the state, but, whether in the Old Home Day gatherings, or on general public occasions, he never talks unless he has something to say, or without saying something, and having said it his remarks are concluded. He never wearies an audience with useless verbiage. As a writer, also, he is both ready and forcible, as evidenced in his annual reports and special publications as secretary of the board of agriculture, his annual addresses as master of the state grange, and his extensive contributions to the agricultural and grange press.

Mr. Bachelder received in 1891 from Dartmouth college the degree of master of arts. He is a member of the University and Womansland clubs of Concord and is a member of Kearsarge lodge, A. F. and A. M. He attends the Congregational church.

He married June 30, 1887, Mary A.
Putney of Dunbarton, and they have two children, Ruth (born May 22, 1891) and Henry (born March 17, 1895.) Their winter home is on North State street, Concord, although the larger part of the year is spent on the farm at East Andover, where the care of 700 acres in the estate is no inconsiderable item in the busy daily life of this active man.

PARISH PRIEST THIS EVENING.

This Friday evening, theatre patrons of Portsmouth will witness the presentation in this city of "Daniel Sully's" pleasing play, "The Parish Priest." There is a mysterious something in this play which appeals to all theatre-goers. The story is simple but wonderfully interesting, depicting as it does the doings of an evening on the road of life. The characters are novel, natural and eloquent.
Some are eloquent in their simplicity as there is no attempt to awaken applause either in the lines or the situations. Yet the applause comes, for the strength of the scenes sway the audience, which demands that the

'STOP JIM'
Scene in The Parish Priest.

curtain go up and down several times after the last act. This is a tribute to the play, for rarely does an audience linger after the play is over to demand another glimpse of the little mimic world across which life's skirmish line has been thrown. Bes-ton compared "The Parish Priest" to "Sag Harbor." It has the same delightful atmosphere, and the same quaintness of character. It has more comedy perhaps, and its heart touches are plentiful. It is appropriately staged, and in all is a beautiful production. As Father Whalen, the jolly priest, Daniel Sully gives one of the best character portrayals of recent years. In fact his general excellence comes in the nature of a surprise, as Mr. Sully heretofore has been identified with comedy work, and his ability to sound the mellow note of true pathos stamps him as a possessor of that rare characteristic, versatility, among the leading actors of today.
Several of the characters demand exceptionally good acting and are well played. The Parish Priest is worth

A CLEVER COMEDY.

What promises to be one of the very best theatrical entertainments of the season will be provided at Music hall on Monday, Sept. 22, when Robert Whitlier will appear in Alex. Bisson's comedy, "Tangled Relations." The scenes are located in the suburbs of Paris and the story, which is clean and wholesome, abounds in hilarious and ludicrous situations interspersed with much wit and some epigram. One of the principal themes in the story is how a man became his own grandfather through marriage and divorce.
This comedy has been produced with success in Berlin, Vienna, Paris, London and New York. Mr. Whitlier is supported by a company in which the artists were selected for the individual parts they portray, and this season is establishing himself as one of the lights in his profession.

LORD SALISBURY ILL.
Much Uneasiness Caused In London
By Disquieting Reports.
London, Sept. 19.—The Times this morning says:
"We much regret to report that Lord Salisbury, who is at present in Switzerland is ill and confined to his bed.
An English and a Swiss doctor have been attending him, and it is understood that his own attendant in London has been sent for."
Lord Salisbury has been doing the health resorts for several weeks. His health has been gradually failing, and the announcement in the Times causes much alarm, carefully worded as it is.

Albert M. Glass Indicted By The Grand Jury.

Dover, N. H., Sept. 18.—The grand jury came in this afternoon and reported ninety-one indictments, the largest number for years. Of this number thirty-three were for charges pertaining to the sale of liquors.

An indictment for murder in the first degree was reported in the case of Albert M. Glass, on the charge of having killed his brother, June 25.
He will be arraigned tomorrow.

The remainder of the indictments were for minor offences.

INJUNCTION GRANTED.

sale Robberies.

New York, Sept. 18.—A. E. Wykeman, a private in the marine corps at the Brooklyn navy yard, was arrested today charged with committing several robberies in the barracks.
In a trunk of Wyke's were found coin and goods said to be worth $50,000.

NEEDS OF THE NAVY.

To Be Investigated In Thorough Manner By Secretary Moody.

Washington, Sept. 18.—Secretary Moody has begun a thorough investigation to ascertain the needs of our naval establishment, the purpose being to collect the views of officers of all branches of the service, and present them to congress.

FRIDAY, SEPT. 19, 1902.

Eastern democrats will have no more of Bryanism. The action of the Massachusetts democratic convention in refusing to consider a platform submitted by George Fred Williams is proof enough of this statement. The silver tongued orator from Nebraska has lost his power over most of his former followers in the eastern states and they will never again submit to his hypnotic influence. In the west the Bryan principles still live, but they are not as generally accepted by the rank and file of the democratic party as they were a few years ago. Bryan is a man to inspire confidence but not one to hold it. His personality is fairly pleasing, and he has a way of persuading people who do not look deeply into a question to take his view of a case, but he cannot hold his followers. They soon begin to doubt his statements. They learn, after a time, that a ready gift of speech does not make a man a deep thinker or a statesman, and when they learn this they also learn to distrust men of the Bryan stamp. For these reasons, the democratic party, practically as a whole, will undoubtedly soon repudiate Bryanism. But this having been done what will be put in its place. It is a fact that the democrats have no real live issue, at the present time, on which they can claim to honestly disagree with the republicans. Free silver is dead, anti-imperialism is taken seriously by only a very few people, and tariff reform, otherwise free trade, is a bad thing for the democrats to talk about. The people once believed what they said on this subject, but sad experience has taught them never to do so again. As for the trusts, President Roosevelt's views in regard to these great corporations seem to coincide pretty thoroughly with those of the people, and the hysterical clamor of the democrats goes for the most part unheeded. It is idle to talk of smashing the trusts, but the republican party can be depended upon to control them if existing laws will allow of it, and to pass other laws if they will not.

THEREFORE, ROOSEVELT.

By Walter J. Ballard.
"I am sufficiently fortunate to be advocating now, as president, precisely the remedies that I advocated two years ago—advocating them not in any partisan spirit, because, gentlemen, this problem is one which affects the life of the nation as a whole—but advocating them simply as the American citizen who for the time being stands as the chief executive and therefore the special representative of his fellow American citizens of all parties. (Great applause.)
"The first thing to do would be to find out the facts. For that purpose I am absolutely clear that we need publicity; that we need it not as a matter of favor from any one corporation, but as a matter of right secured through the agents of the government from all the corporations concerned. The mere fact of the publicity itself will tend to stop many of the evils and it will show that some other alleged evils are imaginary, and, finally, in making evident the remaining evils, these that are not imaginary and that are not cured by the simple light of day, it will give us an intelligent appreciation of the methods to take in getting at them.
"A levery government process the aim that a people capable of self-government should steadfastly keep in mind is to proceed by evolution rather than by revolution. (Applause.) "The people like a man. Mere orators may please and amuse them, as other artists do, but when they find a man they are apt to stick to him. Mr. Roosevelt, as a honest, ability and courage, as in his life work, and the people won't forget that he is not only president but has common sense.
"The politician who thinks he can flag the Roosevelt boom two years hence by a trust-made danger signal is likely to need accident insurance.
"Let the officials of Pennsylvania take inspiration from the example of President Roosevelt. No man living is more highly esteemed by workingmen than he, yet he has never swerved in his enforcement of law. In his eyes laws are for big and little rich and poor alike; and his invariable official procedure and this principle has been one of the great sources of his strength among the people.—Scranton Tribune.

Theodore Roosevelt does not seem able to find any "enemy's country."

The expressions of gratification over the action of California, Missouri, Kansas, Washington and Utah may be accepted as a guide and hint and no man need fear Presidential displeasure because of the delivery of a vote into the Roosevelt column.

Senator Kearns of Utah wired from Ogden as follows:
"Utah republican convention has heartily endorsed your administration and unreservedly declared for you as its choice for 1904. Congratulations and sincere greeting."

The republican New York state convention which meets at Saratoga on September 23 will endorse the administration of President Roosevelt and declare it to be the sense of the convention that he should be nominated for the presidency in 1904. Schenectady, N. Y.

SNAP SHOTS.

Hard coal is again advancing. As most persons look at it, however, it is retreating.

Every time Mr. Cleveland remains silent it makes Mr. Bryan madder than he was before.

A Missouri democratic club has dropped Mr. Bryan's name. What Brutus did to Caesar was nothing to this.

The victory of W. S. Devery is the greatest triumph the ungrammatical epigram has enjoyed since the days of Josh Billings.

Senator James K. Jones says that Bryan will dominate the next national convention. The senator has some reputation as a false prophet.

Devery won in the Tammany primaries and he ought to have won. At all points and in all ways he represents Tammany methods, morals and plunder.

No doubt our regular soldiers, who have been lately reduced to the necessity of fighting each other a good deal, would like to have Haiti to play with a little while.

A visitor to Houston, Tex., claims that he slept in a saloon fifteen minutes and lost $160. This amounts to a little over $10.60 a minute for his lodging. He must have dreamed that he was at the Waldorf-Astoria.

A STIFF UPPER LIP.

Perhaps more business men fall from lack of nerve than from any other cause. In the parlance of the street, they "lay down too quick." One will advertise in a newspaper and if he fails to get returns at once he calls advertising a failure. Another meets with a business reverse—one that a braver man would meet and conquer, but he falls down before it to get up no more. One reads of suicides and other crimes because men tired of grappling with their fate. It is so in advertising and it is so in everything else. The man who holds on is the man who wins. It is the timorous fellow—the one who becomes easily tired—that loses out. Persistence is a jewel of incomparable price in advertising as everywhere else.—National Advertiser.

NORTH CHURCH.

On Sunday next, Rev. Dr. John P. Jones will occupy the pulpit at the North church, in the morning speaking of his work in India as a missionary and in the evening he will give an illustrated lecture with stereopticon on the land of India.

The Boston Mechanics fair opens next Monday and continues thirty-six days.

RICKETY CHILDREN.

As likely to think of chairs as of children when we use that word rickety.

Children with loose joints, bow-legs, and soft bones have rickets. It is a disease due to improper feeding—and a typical disease for the workings of Scott's Emulsion.

For the weak growth of the bones Scott's Emulsion supplies those powerful tonics, the hypophosphites.

For the loss of flesh Scott's Emulsion provides the nourishing cod-liver oil in an easily digestible form.

It is these things that account for the rapidity with which Scott's Emulsion cures rickets.

Rickety children improve in every way under its influence.

BY ACCLAMATION.

Congressman Sulloway Renominated Without Opposition.

Names Of Greene And Ellwell Withdrawn From Contest.

The Delegates Show Their Enthusiasm By Tremendous Cheering.

Manchester, Sept. 18.—Before the balloting for the nomination of congressman for the first republican district held today, Major J. Alonzo Greene of Laconia withdrew his name and Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway of Manchester was renominated by acclamation amidst tremendous cheering.

Even o'clock was the time set for calling the convention to order, but it was half an hour later before Judge N. P. Hunt of Manchester, a member of the state committee, mounted the platform and opened the session.

The hall was full. There were seats for not more than half the delegates and they stood all about the floor, while some sat on the platform steps. Outside the door—delegates only—were admitted—was a crowd of eager and curious men, anxious to see and hear as much as possible of the fight which seemed imminent.

Col. James E. French of Moultonborough reported that the friends of the candidates had agreed upon an organization, which was on his motion adopted by the convention as follows:

Chairman, Col. Lycurgus Pitman of Conway; secretaries, Messrs. Perry H. Dow, Manchester; William F. Knight Laconia; and Willis H. Alvin, Portsmouth.

Committee on credentials—Messrs. William L. Veazey of Laconia, Charles M. Floyd, Manchester; Horace M. Lee, Hampton; L. B. Bodwell, Manchester; and A. J. Goodwin, Moultonborough.

Committee on resolutions—Messrs. Wallace Hackett, Portsmouth; J. H. Hobbs, Madison; George H. Everett, Laconia; James A. Locke, Somersworth; C. C. Clarke, Manchester.

Doorkeeper—Martin L. Piper, Auburn.

Tellers—Messrs. James G. McGerry, Manchester; E. C. Bean, Belmont; and Arthur F. Cooper, Exeter.

Col. James E. French of Moultonborough and Rosecrans W. Pillsbury of Londonderry were named as a committee to escort the permanent chairman to the platform. He made a brief speech, thanking the delegates for the honor conferred upon him, and urging, whoever might be nominated, that all take their coats off and work in unity and harmony for him.

On motion of Mr. Pillsbury of Londonderry, the tellers and secretaries were called together to settle the dispute between the rival delegates from ward five, Portsmouth—two from the regular and two from the bolting caucus. The convention took a brief recess while these committees did their work. Mr. Bean of Belmont was found to be absent and Mr. John S. Quinby of Sandwich was substituted for him as a teller.

The committee on resolutions, through Judge Everett of Laconia, reported a recommendation "that the convention reaffirm the platform adopted by the state convention at Concord," and the report was unanimously adopted.

When the committee on credentials made its report it recommended the unseating of both the disputing pairs of delegates from Portsmouth. The remainder of the report was: Number of delegates entitled to sit and vote, 384; number of tickets issued, 384; including two to Portsmouth delegates not entitled to them. These were revoked. The report was adopted.

Judge David Cross then arose to place in nomination Mr. Sulloway. He was at his best, and save for the fact that he did not at all times speak in a very loud voice, had the address of one of much fewer years. He was in a happy frame of mind and in his opening remarks brought out frequent outbursts of laughter.

"Fellow Republicans," said Judge Cross, "I welcome you to the city of Manchester. I welcome you as republicans, I welcome you as fellow citizens of our good old Granite state. We have today an important duty to perform and I believe each and all of you will do that duty conscientiously and honestly and for the best interests of the republican party and the state."

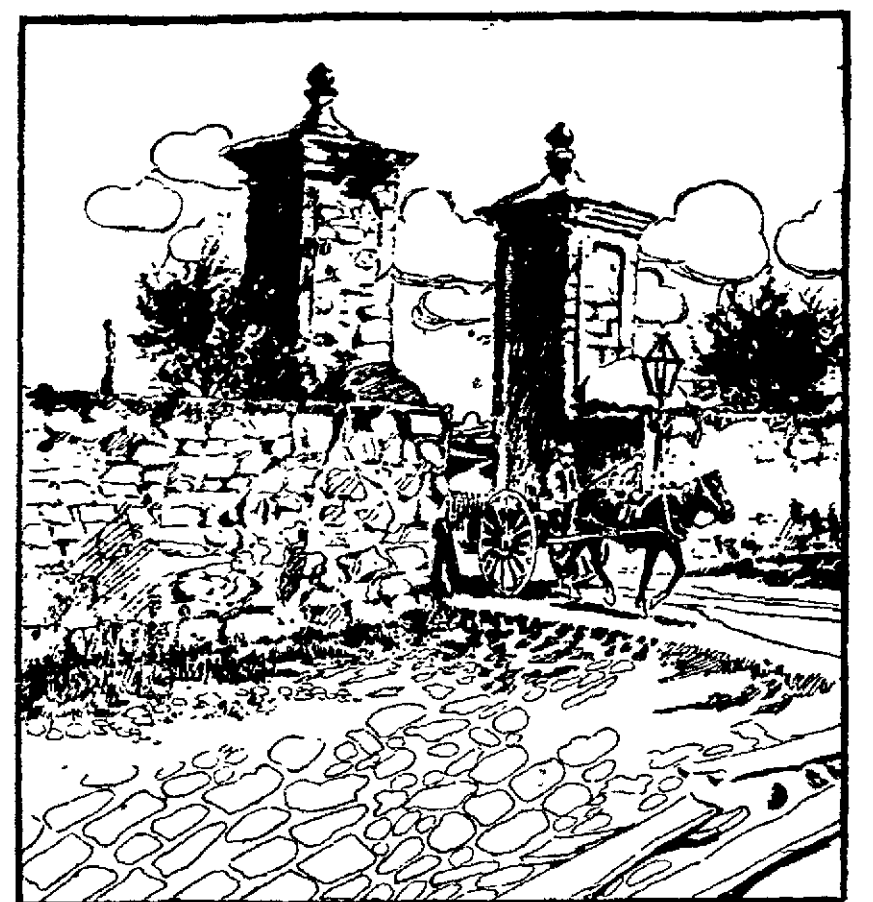

Continuing, the judge told how some thirty or forty years ago a young man had called at his office, stated that he had just been admitted to the bar, that he came from the town of Grafton that he had no money and that he would earn enough to pay for his board.

"I looked him over," said Judge Cross, and then he paused for a moment. It didn't take long for the picture to present itself to the delegates and then they shouted with laughter.

Continuing, the speaker said that he told the young man to take a seat that he continued in his office for a time and it wasn't long before he (the judge) found that the young man was doing considerable business. In the course of time there wasn't room in the office for the clients of both and they parted friends.

The judge pictured the rise of Mr. Sulloway until he and the partner he took were doing the largest law business in Manchester. He told how Mr. Sulloway in a case against the city of The Herald's Daily Puzzle.

"BOY, WILL YOU GIVE ME A RIDE?" WHO IS SPEAKING.

Manchester beat him in a jury trial when all the law and facts were on his side. Judge Cross's side. "He made the jury cry," said the judge, and got $5000 in damages," and that was the signal for another outburst of applause and laughter.

"But I tell you frankly that the fellow had faults," said the speaker. "He had a tremendous prejudice towards wealth; he some way had great sympathy for the poor fellow. (Cheers.) He thought that corporations had no rights. He was constantly thinking about the poor fellow and was always ready to help him (Good said a voice), but notwithstanding this tremendous prejudice he continued to get along and sometimes the corporations thought it a good thing to employ him—when they had a big case. Many a time I saw a poor fellow whom I thought unworthy of charity, but he couldn't help helping him—and yet," he added, "we can't help forgiving him for that."

"As a lawyer," said Judge Cross, "he was successful. He sometimes erred on some notions on political economy, I talked with him about some of his prejudices and he replied, 'I am for the laborer and for the poor man and the honest man every time.' He could no more curb this honesty of purpose than you could tell the brooks to stop flowing or bid the eagle stop winging. It was embodied in his heart and in his soul.

"That young man went on from step to step. A few years ago we nominated him for congress. He entered congress and some of his notions he reconsidered. He studied the laws of the country, the needs of the country and it sobered him. That young man from New Hampshire, living in the atmosphere of such a man as William McKinley, breathing the self-sacrificing spirit of William McKinley, has grown gradually till he has come to us as a noble son of New Hampshire, as a true statesman, worthy of our belief and worthy of our confidence.

"Fellow-Republicans, we cannot afford at this time to leave this man here at home. We are about to select an agent to act for us. He has had eight years experience that no other man can have. There is no other man in this district who has had his experience or who can be as valuable in congress as Cyrus A. Sulloway."

"So, Mr. President, so fellow Republicans, it gives me sincere pleasure to place in nomination this boy of mine, this lawyer friend of mine, this able statesman, Cyrus A. Sulloway."

When the judge closed his speech which followed Judge Cross' nominating speech had died away Judge F. M. Beckford of Laconia took the floor in behalf of Dr. Greene and every one listened attentively to hear what he would say in support of his candidate.

At the conclusion of the nominating speeches, both Dr. Greene and Col. R. N. Ellwell, the Exeter candidate, announced their withdrawal from the contest, and the unanimous nomination of Mr. Sulloway followed.

To the rank and file of the delegates the action of Maj. Greene and Colonel Ellwell in withdrawing from the contest came as a complete surprise. Both had their ballots freely distributed in the hall; both had kept their headquarters open until the last moment and made every possible showing of a determination to contest the nomination to the very last. Some of the delegates were so enthusiastic in their support of one or the other of these two candidates that they wore their ballots prominently displayed upon the front of their hats.

Yet the leaders of the convention knew what was coming from the time they gathered in the hall, if not before. Judge F. M. Beckford of Laconia had, when he left the Manchester House this morning, instructions to second, in Dr. Greene's name, the nomination of Mr. Sulloway. Whether Attorney General Eastman, Colonel Ellwell's representative had similar instructions is not known.

Skeleton Unearthed By Workmen At York Harbor.

A Century Old Mystery Believed To Be Explained.

York Harbor, Me., Sept. 18.—A story which many people believe is authenticated by a recent discovery, is that of a murder supposed to have been committed in this locality previous to the beginning of the last century.

In making excavations for building a house, near the Parish creek bridge, workmen unearthed, under about twenty inches of soil, a human skeleton nearly complete. The skull was intact except for a big fracture, which may have been the cause of death. The largest bone in the skeleton shows it to be that of a man of large stature.

Upon this spot was located the old Stacy tavern, which was used as a public house after the Revolution by a Mr. Stacy, who had fought under Lieutenant Paul Jones.

During a night of revelry there, a pack peddler who had participated in the revelries, mysteriously disappeared, and it is supposed that the body found was his.

stop to what they claim is the "gross injustice to the American people" sales by our manufacturers of commodities in foreign markets at prices lower than goods are sold in the domestic market.

Proctor works, the Democratic agers have been groping into the past and have taken up an issue that was repudiated by congress and which was found by the industrial commission investigation to be of no value or interest to the American people. Yet Al-

Grigas, the Democratic chairman, has found a list of articles, including watches, pens, ballpoint pens, alarm clocks, and other items, which, he says, are being sold in European markets by American manufacturers at prices lower than the market price in the United States.

markets of this country. The hope of the Democratic managers to make of this statement an issue that would win in the election is based upon most flimsy prospect. The industry commission investigation showed that

In some lines of trade articles were sometimes sold in foreign markets at prices lower than the same articles brought in the American market, but it was also ascertained that invariably there was a special reason for such conditions, and that they should be taken into consideration in connection with the facts of each case before a trial bill could be found against the American manufacturers for "robbery" of the domestic consumer. It was found that in every instance where goods were sold abroad at lower prices so for special reason, like a desire to get rid of a surplus or to introduce a new article in foreign markets or to unload old and comparatively useless articles which had been superseded by improved articles of manufacture.

The fact is that the Democratic managers will find it a most difficult task to prove their case of "robbery" against the American manufacturers in face of the reports made by the treasury department of the exports and ports of the country during the year. In spite of the alleged advantages which the American manufacturer has in his own market the ports show a decided increase durports. The "brother" American manufacturer is not doing as well as might, according to the record. Democratic managers would make holding his own market entire against foreign competition, and American producers are not alw having the best of success in invading the foreign market.

It Would Control Our Market In Absence of Protection.

The tariff makes the trusts, the Democrats argue; therefore to put an end to the trusts do away with the tariff.

This would knock out not only trusts, but the entire industries which they are engaged by turning their business over to foreign trusts whose existence there is no lack of. The state department, thro

American consuls, has collected a vast amount of data upon the subject, showing the ramifications of the combination and their operations. Taking the case of glass, for instance, the state department reports:

cently been formed, incorporating the industry in France, Germany, Belgium, Italy, Austria and Bohemia, negotiations are now being carried on with English manufacturers, with ultimate object of embracing all

The Democratic proposition is to the American glass factory with trade and then permit the international glass trust to fix prices and distribute among the glass producing nations of Europe orders for glass for American consumers.

department reports, the German trade syndicates are six in number as follows: The pig iron syndicate, ingot and steel billet syndicate, girder syndicate the drawn wire dicates, the plate and wire rod syncates. Their purpose is to concentthe production in the hands of a manufacturing committee which disutes orders among the members, fix-selling prices and regulates produc-

A list of the articles controlled trusts in Europe and Great Britain would include every article of ordinary trade consumption. The British are well plastered with trusts, controlling textile, iron, steel, glass pottery manufactures, the lines of industry which have been built up in this country under a protective tariff. Concord (N. H.) Monitor.

ROBERT S. FOSBURG INJURED.

Has His Right Foot Badly Crushed at Freeman's Point.

Robert S. Fosburg, of the firm of R. L. Fosburg & Son, the contractors in charge of the work at Freeman's Point, met with a painful accident on Thursday. He was at work about a cart when the wheels passed over his right foot, badly crushing three of the toes. He was taken to his home on State street, where he was attended by Dr. Towle. It will be some days before Mr. Fosburg is able to walk.

LEARN TO SWIM.

A well known yachtsman who had been sailing his own vessel for years was drowned at his own anchorage the other day because he had never taken the trouble to learn to swim. Many able seamen who have followed the sea all their lives have failed to school themselves in swimming. Strange and perplexing neglect! How can it be explained that men whose amusements or occupations take them constantly on the water are so reckless of their own safety?—New York Tribune.

POLICE COURT.

William Chapman, bruised and repentant, stood before Judge Adams in police court this morning and pleaded ignorance to all knowledge of the disturbance he created at the Creek on Thursday evening. He was fined $5 and costs taxed at $6.90 on the charge of brawl and tumult.

William Johnson, a paper mill employe, pleaded guilty to being drunk in Call's lumber yard on Thursday and settled to the tune of $11.90.

STRAYED FROM HOME.

A three and one-half years old youngster strayed from his home on Wabird street Thursday forenoon and was not found until after six o'clock in the evening, when he was discovered sitting on the curbstone beneath the Creek bridge. His absence created considerable excitement in the neighborhood of his home.

ALL RENOMINATED.

Rockingham County Officers Endorsed At Ex-ter.

Republican Convention This Morning A Love Feast.

Not A Single Contest And All Over In Five Minutes.

(Special to the Herald.)

Exeter, Sept. 19.—The Rockingham County republican convention, held at the town hall here today, lasted only five minutes. That was long enough for the renomination of all the present county officers by acclamation.

Such a love feast in the dominating party has most likely never before occurred in any county in the state. There was not a single contest on hand and it was but the work of a very few moments for the convention to express its most emphatic endorsement of the officials now serving the county.

The nominations are as follows: William Morrill of Exeter, who has served five terms as register of deeds; William H. C. Follansby of Exeter and George F. Richards of Exeter, who have completed two terms as treasurer and register of probate, respectively, and Commissioners John H. Griffin of Newmarket, Joseph R. Rowe of Brentwood and Ceylon Spinney of Portsmouth, Sheriff Marcus M. Collis of Portsmouth and Solicitor John W. Kelley of Portsmouth, who were elected two years ago.

There were ninety-seven delegates present, out of 102, a remarkably large number in view of the lack of contest. The presiding officer of the convention was Charles Smith of Newmarket, who had about the easiest task which ever fell to the lot of a convention pilot.

Some seventy-five delegates arrived in town yesterday afternoon and last night the Squamscott was a lively spot. Notwithstanding the lack of contest, all of the candidates kept open house there, receiving their friends until late in the evening.

WAINWRIGHT—BALL.

A wedding of some interest to society people in Portsmouth and elsewhere has just taken place in Boston. The Herald notes that at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Frederic Russell Nourse, at 194 Marlboro street, the marriage of Mr. Robert Wainwright took place very quietly at noon on Wednesday, with Rev. Charles E. St. John, secretary of the American Unitarian association, as the officiating clergyman. The ceremony was witnessed by only the immediate families of the bride and groom, and there were no ushers or bridesmaids.

The bride was the widow of Henry Barnsley Ball, a native of Portsmouth, and formerly well known as an architect in Boston, and who died in Ottawa, Can., in July of last year. Mr. Wainwright, who is of the Harvard class of '91, is the youngest son of Henry C. Wainwright, head of the old-time banking house of that name on State street. He has been long associated with his father in this business and is prominent in the club set in Boston. Mr. and Mrs. Wainwright are to make their home in Concord, Mass.

HI HENRY'S MINSTRELS.

Hi Henry's big minstrel troupe presented its numerous attractions on Music hall stage Thursday evening, and despite the many other events of the evening presented them to the usual well filled house.

Mr. Henry always provides good music, both vocal and instrumental, and always brings with him a coterie of clever comedians, whose jokes are always good and nearly always new. Billy Clark, and all the others, are funnier than ever this year.

The stage setting for the first part was one of the most elaborate ever seen here, and the costumes of the members of the troupe were striking and beautiful. The songs were good and were well sung, and the saxophone quartette was forced to respond as in former years, to several encores.

The olio contained an unusual number of novel features, chief among which were the imitations of J. A. Probst, the "human song bird," the feats of Senor and Senora Francella, the European exponents of physical culture, and the surprising performance of Prof. Winschermann's trained bears and monkeys. These latter certainly furnished "an incredible exhibition of animal sagacity."

LOST A FINGER.

Several weeks ago Harry Chick, employed on the Portsmouth, Kittery and York street railway, had the first finger of the left hand severely jammed but the hurt healed apparently all right after being dressed by a doctor. Recently however, the injury developed another and more serious phase and on Thursday Mr. Chick went to the Cottage hospital, where the finger was successfully amputated by Dr. Lance.

DOVER WOMAN MISSING.

Fear'd That She May Have Jumped into the River at Kittery.

Mrs. Susan B. Perkins, widow of William A. Perkins of Dover, has been missing from her home since Sept. 8. Her disappearance is very mysterious and her relatives fear that she has committed suicide. Mrs. Perkins is eighty years old.

It is learned that she left the home of Mrs. George B. Prescott, 61 Silver street, with whom she has been living for some time, a week ago last Monday, saying as she left that she was going to visit her daughter, Mrs. George Gage of Broadway. As she did not return when expected, inquiries were made, which revealed the fact that she did not go there.

Nothing has been seen of Mrs. Perkins since, and no trace of her was gained until Thursday, when a letter was received by George Colbath of Dover from a Kittery man named Hanscom, which stated that a bag containing a sum of money and an address card bearing the name of Mrs. Perkins, had been found in Kittery, and could be secured by the owner on proving property. Mr. Colbath will go to Kittery today to investigate the matter.

It is stated that Mrs. Perkins left at Mrs. Prescott's three letters, addressed to different persons. These were mailed soon after she left by Mrs. Prescott, without ascertaining their contents.

Mrs. Perkins is said to have left her things in a way to strengthen the theory that she intended to commit suicide. It is thought she may have gone to Kittery and committed suicide by jumping into the river.

FIREMEN'S DAY.

Exhibition Drill.

The hook and ladder company gave a lively exhibition drill at two o'clock in the afternoon. Three long ladders were placed in position on the Chronicle and Rockingham National bank buildings and the men mounted to the top in a remarkably short space of time. It was an interesting sight to see the ladders run up into the air, with firemen perched on the top most rungs. A large crowd watched the drill, and expressed their approval of the clever work of the fire ladders, by enthusiastic clapping of hands.

Trial Of The Engines.

The competitive trial of the different engines was one of the most interesting features of the day. It began about three o'clock and continued until nearly five. Sagamore, No. 1, threw the longest stream, winning over its nearest competitor by nearly eleven feet.

The members of the victorious company paraded through the principal streets in the early evening headed by a drum corps, and carrying torches of red fire.

The records made by the engines follow:

Kearsarge, No. 3.—236 feet, 6 1/4 inches; Moses H. Goodrich, No. 4.—240 feet, 6 1/4 inches; Colonel Sise, No. 2.—240 feet, 7 3/4 inches; Sagamore, No. 1.—251 feet, 6 1-8 inches.

The Band Concerts.

The Portsmouth City band played in the afternoon in the intervals between the engine trials, and the band stand on Market square, was surrounded by people all the afternoon. The selections were all aptly chosen, and the band played them remarkably well.

In the evening the Naval band entertained the crowd for two hours in a highly satisfactory manner. The numbers of the program were selected with a view of pleasing the popular fancy, and the work of the musicians won deserved applause. The Naval band has never appeared to better advantage at an open air concert in this city.

The Firemen's Ball.

The ninth annual dancing assembly of the W. J. Sampson Hook and Ladder company, which was held in Pelree hall Thursday evening, proved one of the most successful of the entire long series. The floor was crowded with dancers, and Joy and Philbrick's orchestra furnished excellent music.

BADLY BURNED.

Edward McWinnik Wakes Up and Finds His Arm Blistered.

Edward McWinnik, better known as "McGinty," who has recently returned from serving a sentence at Brentwood, got full of red liquor on Thursday and lay down in an out-house on Hanover street in the evening and went to sleep. This morning he awoke and found that one half of his coat had been burned off and that one arm was completely blistered. He was attended by a physician, who pronounced the wounds of a serious nature.

HOMESICKNESS FOR THE WOODS

The mocking cry of the loon in the sombre night, the campfire over which the hot black coffee pot hangs from a forked stick; the frizzling fish and the venison steaks, the soft glow of the knowshoe in the light snow above the crust that sometimes cracks with an explosion of a distant cannon; all these recollections are indisputable symptoms of that homesickness for the woods that brings the men in thousands from their offices and homes at this crisp, bracing season of the year to the jungle in Maine and New Hampshire.

A NOTABLE HONOR TO A SON OF PORTSMOUTH.

A distinguished honor has just come to Frater Frank J. Philbrick, of this city, who is prominent in the Masonic fraternity of New Hampshire. The Herald in this instance refers to the fact that he has been chosen by the Thirty-third degree Masons of the council in this jurisdiction a member thereof.

As this honor, entirely unsought in any case, can be conferred on only one to every fifty Thirty-second degree in any state, the choice of Mr. Philbrick is particularly notable. The official notification of his elevation was received by him on Sunday last, and on Thursday he went to Providence, R. I. to take the impressive obligation, the same being conferred by the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite Masons, prominent members being present from all over the country.

The following is Frater Philbrick's Masonic degree record as kindly given us by officials of the local branches of the distinguished fraternity:

St. John's Lodge, No. 1. A. F. and A. M.—Entered Apprentice, May 10, 1876; Crafted, July 12, 1876; Master Mason, Sept. 16, 1876; Worshipful Master in 1893-94-95.

Washington Royal Arch Chapter, No. 3.—Mark Master Mason, February 15, 1887; Past Master, February 22, 1887; Most Excellent Master, April 5, 1887; Royal Arch Mason, April 12, 1887.

Davenport Council No. 5, Royal and Select Masters—Royal Master's Degree, April 25, 1888; Select Master's Degree, May 10, 1888; Super-Excellent Master's Degree, June 28, 1888; elected treasurer, October 22, 1891; resigned as treasurer, March 28, 1901.

DeWitt Clinton Commandery Knights Templar.—Order of the Red Cross, May 16, 1887; Order of the Temple, May 27, 1887; Order of Malta, June 20, 1887.

Mr. Philbrick took his degrees in the Ineffable Grand Lodge of Perfection, July 25, 1888.

Elected Thrice Potent Grand Master of this lodge, February 29, 1892, and held this office until May 3, 1901. He took his degrees in the Grand Council, Princes of Jerusalem, in July, 1888.

Degrees in New Hampshire Chapter of Rose Croix, August 22, 1888.

Elected Grand Orator of this chapter, August 29, 1890, and holds the office at the present time.

The Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite Masons had a genuine Rhode Island clam bake on Tuesday, and on the return to Providence the ladies of that hospitable city gave the ladies of the fraters a theatre party. On the following day the entire company were entertained at Newport, where a tally-ho drive of ten miles was taken, followed by a sumptuous dinner.

Next year the Council meets in Boston.

OBITUARY.

Dr. Rufus H. King.

Dr. Rufus H. King, the oldest practicing physician of Carroll county, died at his residence in Wolfeboro on Wednesday night.

He was born in Wakefield, Sept. 26, 1821. He took the classical course at Phillips academy, Andover, Mass., in 1840 and 1841, attended the old Tremont school of Boston in 1845 and was graduated with honor from Bowdoin Medical college, Brunswick, Me.

He commenced practice in Kittery, Me., in 1847. He went to Newton, Mass., in 1854, and subsequently to Newark, N. J.

He located in Wolfeboro in 1860, and soon obtained an extensive practice. He was a member of the Carroll county medical society and Morning Star lodge No. 17, A. F. and A. M., of Wolfeboro.

He is survived by a wife, two daughters and one son, a practicing physician in Lynn, Mass.

WAGES INCREASED.

The lasters employed at the factory of the Portsmouth Shoe company have been granted an increase of wages. The increase was given voluntarily by the officers of the company.

TO CELIA THAXTER.

On Appledore when the summer was dying,
And Autumn mists lay thick on the sea, I stood knee deep in your poppy garden And words of your songs came back to me.

I climbed the way to your hill-top cottage Where the broad sea lay like a world at my feet, And a bugle call came over the waters, Bridging the sea with sounds that were sweet.

Then I thought how once in the Autumn weather You gathered red leaves on the Portsmouth shore;
And bore them back to your sea-girt island Gainst the time, when winter should knock at the door.

Through the dim, cold days of the northern winter,
As the sea grew gray and the earth grew white, With a tiny brush on a bit of canvass You brought back the crimson Autumn's delight.
And now as I stand in your poppy garden, And look out over the shining deep;
I know that you rest in a greater garden Neath the scarlet flowers of eternal sleep.

LILLEY—EDDY.

A very pretty home wedding occurred at the home of Mrs. C. W. Severt on the Meredith road, yesterday afternoon, the contracting parties being her son, Joseph Spencer Lilley, and Miss Edith Eddy of Portsmouth. The nuptial knot was tied by the Rev. C. D. Hills, pastor of the First Methodist church of this city. None but the immediate members of the family were present. The parlors were handsomely decorated, an arch of evergreen being erected in the middle of the room under which the couple stood while the ceremony was performed. A wedding breakfast was served, after which the young couple left. They will take a wedding tour of two weeks duration when they will go to Portsmouth, which will be their future home. Mr. Lilley being employed in that city. There were many handsome presents.—Laconia correspondence in Manchester Union, 19th inst.
